PULASKI, TENN.

FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 13th, 1866.

The "utter" most part of the earth are supposed to be the part where there are women.

Why cannot a deaf man be legally con- sidered? Because it is not lawful to con- sider a man without a hearing.

It is said that a Yankee has invented a kind of yeast, that makes bread so light that a pound of it only weighs six ounces.

Editor down East said that he hoped to be able to present a marriage and death notice in his columns, but un- fortunately a thaw broke up the wedding. A doctor got sick and the patient re- fused.

"BARK" POMEROY understands his busi- ness, and isn't afraid to speak out in meet- ings. He says his party has been kept back and overawed by bayonets long enough, and that it is time they were advancing their skirmish line to the front, and charge the radicals right and left. He says:

Do we not indeed know what this Re- publican party has been? Its record for the last four years should alone overwhelm it with damnation—it is a stench, a political corruption and rottenness—the most de- veloped of villainies and infamies ever devised to ruin a country, or blast the good name of a nation.

This thing—this loathsome ulcer on the face of the republic, festering, poisoning the healthy life current—the Government! at heavens—can impudence and brazen assurance further go? Think of it—a fac- tor of traitors, sectionalists, disunionists; mobs, antagonism to free speech, free press and civil liberty—of bastilles, dun- geons, and prisons—of drafts, conscrip- tions, and provost marshals—of taxation, rap acts, and office holders—of green- backs, postal currency, seals, and shin- gles—of $3,000,000,000 of national debt—of negro equality, and the degrada- tion of white men—a gigantic, accursed, national despotism, usurping all powers, throwing all Constitutions, nullifying all laws, now claiming to be the Gov-writing from Medon, Tenn., says: "The wing of the great"

You ask for Southern incidents, by word and deed. As I happen to be a 'civ- ilized rebel' myself, I can tell you what I saw with my own eyes, and heard with my own ears. The 3d of May, 1864, Gen. Forrest's Federal notoriety, came from the hunt, find and whip General of the Federal command, number- ing 10,000 valiant soldiers, came by Tenn., to astonish the good people of their slight of hand tricks, and also a play of their cavalry. Gen. Forrest's command had gone down to Mississippi by way of Purdy, Tenn.

The Gen. and staff, with a small portion of Maj. Cruise's battalion—some hundred and fifty men—were in Bolivar when the scouts brought word that the 'enemy' were coming in strong force.

"Soon the firing of the pickets warned us that the scouts had not fooled us. Gen. Forrest and staff rode to the battle-field, where the firing had become pretty brisk. He dismounted his men and took the ad- vantage of some Federal breast-works, thrown up when they were occupying Bolivar as a Federal post.

"The enemy dismounted and charged, and were repulsed, charged again, and were repulsed. Soon the cannon and shell began to boom about the heads of the gal- lant little band—150 men butting against 10,000. Conspicuous among the gloomy surroundings was Gen. Forrest on his gal- lant gray. And amid the bursting shells and raining bullets he sat, calm and undis- turbed. One after another of his brave boys were wounded. One little boy—a widow's only darling—lay dead, and still he stood there, grand and lonely as a rock in mid-ocean, girt by storm swept waves. For more than two hours, that little handful of citizen-soldiers braved the hurricane of twelve thousand men—veteran war-riors—and held them at bay until some two hundred armed conscripts could get be- hind each of danger. When this had been accomplished, Forrest ordered his men to mount, form fours, and fall back

3,000 cavalry were in sight, and they feared to bay the lion. They came shouting and yelling. Forrest and his men were almost entirely surrounded; but on that slow, quiet, mournful march, and actually camped just in town, and rested his men.— He pursued him to Mississippi, and routed, horse, foot and dragoon, and beaten by not more than 2-

RATES OF POSTAGE. In consequence of the general ignorance in the South of the rates of postage established by law, many letters of importance are daily lost to those interested by being improperly or insufficiently stamped. The regulations require that all such letters dropped into post offices shall be immediately forwarded to the Dead Letter office, where they are never heard from unless they contain money, or other enclosures of value. We give below some in- formation which may prevent vexation to corre- spondents:

The rate of postage on letters within the United States is 5 cents for every letter or sealed package weighing one-half ounce or under. Those over one-half ounce, 6 cents, and 8 cents for every additional half ounce. Prepayment with stamps in all cases is required. All letters without the necessary post- age stamps, or which are stamped with revenue stamps, will be forwarded to the Dead Letter office immediately after being dropped into any post office. Postage stamps issued prior to 1860 are worthless, and will not answer for present purposes.

Opinions of Distinguished Busi- ness Men.

"Advertise your business. Do not hide your light under a bushel. Whatever your calling or occupation may be, if it needs support from the public, advertise it thoroughly and efficiently in some shape or other, that will arrest public attention. I firmly confess that what success I have had in life may fairly be attributed more to the public press than to nearly all the other causes combined. There may possibly be occupations that do not re- quire advertising, but I cannot well conceive what they are.—P. T. BARNUM.

"I have always considered advertising—liberally and long—to be the great medium of success in busi- ness, and the prelude to wealth. And I have al- ways made it an invariable rule, too, to advertise in the dullest times, a long experience having taught me that money thus spent is well laid out; as by keeping my business continually before the public, has secured me many sales that I otherwise would have lost."—STEPHEN GIRARD.

"Whatever success I may have had in business I owe mainly to continuous advertising, and I deem it good policy to advertise long in the same papers. From a close observation I am fully convinced that it is impossible to make much headway in any kind of business, without the facilities which the press alone can give.—JACOB RIDEWAY.
